

Ventura College's Earth Action Day Weds. April 23, 2008 10-2:30p

VC's second annual Earth Day is about ACTION--taking action, advocating action--with an emphasis on educating and advocating actions related to and about global warming. The event is free; parking is $1 on campus.

The event features two stages of entertainment, a film series, booths, a program by EATM, music, singer/songwriters, poets, writers, clothing swap, alternative transportation info, and speakers.

The film series will run from 10-2, with a series of short films starting at noon kicked off with a 4 minute reflective piece by Steve Shaefer set to a poem by Robert Frost. The short films are provided by the Earth Day Network; the longer films are donated by MovieTown in midtown Ventura.

The main stage in the quad will feature a 10-11am show by the Exotic Animal Training and Management Program at Moorpark College. The show will focus on endangered species and the impact of global warming. Many of the children from VC's Child Development Center will be walking up to the quad for the family friendly show.

The patio between the new library and the old library offers more reflective entertainment such as a poetry open mic and singer/songwriter Emy Reynolds and CSUCI prof and Sespe Wild writer Brad Monsma as well as fresh squeezed organic orange juice as a fundraiser for the VC preschool coop.

Please join us! If you would like to table, please contact gwendolynalley@yahoo.com

For more information about eco-events and literary events, go to:
<http://whisperdownthewritealley.wordpress.com>